RELIEF CORPS FAIR.

BOOTH ALL OPEN AT ARMORY HALL LAST NIGHT.

Hundreds of Beautiful Women in Handsome Costumes on the Pier — A Description of the Various Booths — A Complete List of the Ladies in Attendance—Notes.

The Relief Corps Fair presented a veritable transformation scene last night. The changes made in the booths during the day made one think that Aladdin's lamp had been touched by the fair ladies who spent the day at Armory Hall. With deft fingers and the dainty grace which women alone know how to give, they transformed the rough framework of the booths into pleasant places to linger and chat with the matrons and young ladies in charge.

The ladies of the corps organized for work during the last week in August, and the effect of thorough preparation is to be seen on every side, the costumes of the ladies being particularly elegant and harmonious with the brilliant affair. The booths are plentifully supplied with articles of beauty, and, while no particular effort is made to force their sale, still the patronage is large.

The attendance was an improvement on the large crowd present the opening night, and the visitors were treated to a novel march of ladies, misses and young gentlemen in costumes representing various business houses in the city. Many of the costumes were novel in design and elaborate in execution, and over 50 well-known business houses were represented. The ladies looked very handsome in their symbolic costumes. They were marshalled by Capt. Jones, when the hall had filled and the center of the floor was cleared, went through some pretty marching evolutions, which were heartily applauded. Several of the newspapers were represented by daintily dressed champions bearing banners, one of the handsomest and most striking being that of Miss Vera Rosman, who represented THE TIMES.

The booths were reinforced last night by a number of young ladies who were not present on the opening night. All the months in the year are represented in the booths, each one being dressed and decorated to suit the particular humor of the month supposed to be in charge; except the gypsy booth, which has its own particular whimsies, emanating from work in such a collection of oriental costumes and the flashing eyes of its fair occupants. February being St. Valentine's month it becomes the postoffice, and July is chosen for the national booth, where an interesting display of glass bead articles made by blind veterans at the Soldiers' Home is to be seen beneath the rich drapery of the "old flags." The March booth has a fishing pond for many anglers, and April is sweetly furnished with butterflies, served by pretty girls, whose smiles are as capriciously bestowed as the showers in that felicitous month. And so it goes, straight through the year, the idea being thoroughly and splendidly carried out through them all.

The following is a list of the ladies in charge of the different booths last night.

Headquarters—Mrs. Elizabeth G. Hill in charge of the office and the night shift were on duty, the officers being Mrs. Carrera, Mrs. Tarte, president; Mrs. Mary A. Weeks vice-president; Mrs. Abbie E. Johnson, secretary; and Mrs. Billie F. Frazier.

Lancaster booth—Miss J. Wood assisted by Mrs. W. F. Frey, Mrs. Robb and Misses Mabel Skopstad, Belle Rupp and Emma Bushey.

Sacramento booth—Miss Grace Burroughs, J. S. Speer, Mary E. Addis E. Carter, Misses Maude Curtis, Inez Baine, Lydia McBratney, Kate Rodgers, Gertrude Frank, Theresa Marchant, Minnie Condit, Georgia Ferguson and Eliza Galbreath.

Palo Alto booth—Miss Lillian Kirkbride, Mrs. S. E. Archer, Misses Anna Knox and Nellie Meigs, Misses M. G. Wright, E. J. Bradford, Hattie Gordon, Misses Louise Williams, Mrs. Hassler, Mrs. Hassler and Mrs. Louis M. Dallas.

National booth—Misses Alice Fitch, Fannie Mallory, Southworth, Wise, Hartwell, Brainerd, Smith, Samson, Martin, Calvin, Brynolds, Smith, Morris, John, Calvin, H. H. Quackenbush, Williams and Austin.

Business booth—Dr. H. H. Tyler, Wm. M. Murray, E. C. Gould, N. W. Pound, assisted by Mrs. L. Sillick, N. W. Bennett, J. L. Harrison, C. B. Barney, M. H. Brown, E. J. Wilson, Olive Davis, L. Hamlin, Misses Frank and Nellie Bryson.

Gymnastic tent—Misses Autonette Detani, Anna Earle, Misses E. B. Lindsay, C. Smith, S. T. Binkley, L. Charnock.

Art booth—Mrs. A. B. Simmons, Mrs. Laura Brady, Mrs. Lizzie Koebl, Mrs. A. W. Swain.

NOTES.

Miss Vera Rosman's costume, representing THE TIMES, was a very effective one, the young lady being both pretty and graceful, wearing court-train costume with white satin front, upon which was a miniature painting of the Times Building in gold. It had a garnet-plush court train and pink satin panels. The sleeves were bell-shaped, of rich pink satin, cut V shape. She wore a pretty head dress of oak leaves and acorns, and presented a dainty and charming picture as she marched in the company, bearing a banner of garnet plush with gold fringe. A picture representing THE TIMES was painted in the garnet plush.

The dinner given yesterday by Gelfich Corps was largely partaken of and greatly enjoyed.

Department President Mrs. Geraldine E. Frisbie, Marshal Department Inspector Mrs. P. Stanton, Department I. and L. Officer Mrs. Emma G. Gilpinning, with 15 present and past presidents, were guests of Gelfich Corps at dinner yesterday.

The Express was represented by Mrs. Neville Gleeson.

Hall and Joey Gleeson represented the Eagle Stables, and were in jockey costume.

Miss C. B. Clark represented the First National Bank, and her costume was one of the most elegant of the evening.

Frank Bartlett Corps gives the dinner today.

The entertainment tonight will be by the G.A.R.

The different corps have united in presenting a beautiful gold-mounted sword to the most popular G.A.R. member of all the different posts. It is a handsome blade, is elegantly mounted on a black velvet easel, and there will be a vigorous contest by the friends of the popular members.

AN AFFIDAVIT OF CHARACTER

No Attempt to Bribe Mr. Severance or Any Other Man.

[San Bernardino Courier, Nov. 26.]

SAN BERNARDINO, NOV. 28, 1889.
Editor Courier: As Mr. Severance's statement regarding the charge that I offered him $5000 to vote for the Cheney tract site, selected by the commissioners for asylum grounds, does not seem to me strong enough to satisfy the LOS ANGELES TIMES. I desire through your columns to publish the following sworn statement:

I never offered Mr. Severance or any other commissioner $5000, or any sum whatever, either directly or indirectly, to vote for any offer I made for any office made the commissioners by others in which I was directly or indirectly interested. —SETH BOLTON.

Scrapped and sworn to before me, this 25th day of November, 1889.
T. J. BOLTON,
Notary Public.

[Glad to hear it. All the same, however, the statement was explicitly made—not by THE TIMES—that a bribe had been offered, as heretofore published. For the publication THE TIMES is responsible. For the original statement others are responsible.—ED. TIMES.]

W. N. CLEVELAND, brother of the ex-President, has received a unanimous call to the pulpit of the Presbytery Church, at Channing, N. Y. An offer to do so was given. Give some good brotherly advice as to the folly of overweening ambition.

THE Geological Survey has just made some very important discoveries of Indian relics, near Washington. Too little is known of the early races who inhabited our country. The Government might well afford to spend a little money in such investigation.

An American named Ellsworth, who invented the smokeless and noiseless powder which has been exciting Europe, has made a very good thing out of it. He sold to the German Government the exclusive rights for all countries, except the United States, Mexico and Central America. For the right sold he received $500,000, and $10,000 a year for 99 years, reserving the American rights at the same figure. A dispatch from Washington announces that the Government has purchased a smokeless powder patent, which may be that of Ellsworth.

We are pleased and relieved to learn that our esteemed contemporary, the Heraid, does not, after all, intend to hold the Administration responsible for the bursting of the Conemaugh dam, but only the manufacturers who constructed the dam with criminal carelessness. We are not advised as to whether said manufacturers are all—or mostly—Republicans. Probably our contemporary is so informed, but even then, it seems to be going rather far to infer that Democratic manufacturers might not have been equally careless, under like circumstances.

A DISPATCH from Washington announces that Secretary Proctor is endeavoring to make arrangements to leave with Gen. Crook and Capt. Pratt to make a personal visit of inspection to Mt. Vernon barracks, Ala., where Geronimo and the band of Apache Indians are imprisoned. Effort was made earlier in the year to secure the removal of these Indians to a tract of land in North Carolina, but Gov. Fowle objected, and Secretary Proctor declined to order their removal, especially as evidence has been given him from prominent medical authorities that it would be dangerous to send the Indians to a more northern point in view of the fact that they are exceedingly susceptible to pulmonary disease.

THE annual report of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, covering the operations of the bureau for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1889, does not, by any means, confirm the woeful predictions of impending calamity which Democratic journals have delighted to paint since the question of protection versus "tariff reform" first appeared on the horizon. On the contrary, Mr. Mason's report shows that the internal-revenue receipts from all sources during the year were $130,894,434, or $5,894,434 more than the estimate in the last annual report from the bureau, and it is estimated that receipts during the current fiscal year will reach $135,000,000. Now the Democrats will have to take refuge in the assertion that the increase would have been twice as large, under a free-trade administration.

Some time since your committee decided to depart from the questionable practice of assessing candidates, which practice is, in effect, a sale of nominations to cash bidders. They also decided to avoid soliciting

IRRIGATION—A REMARKABLE EXAMPLE OF ITS VALUE.

From time to time, during the past few months, the dispatches from the East regarding sales of California fruits have reported remarkably high prices received for the grapes raised by a Sacramento man—Russ D. Stephens. So unusually large have been these prices—which have been occasionally commented upon in these columns—that they have excited marked interest among the grape-growers of the State, many of whom have been or the point of pulling up their vines, through inability to make them even pay a low interest on their cost.

A reporter of the San Francisco Bulletin recently visited the vineyard of Mr. Stephens, who, it appears, is postmaster of Sacramento, and carefully investigated the facts regarding his reported large profits and the methods by which they have been secured. In a long article the newspaperman reports the result of his inquiry, which resulted in a complete confirmation of reports hitherto published, and much of interest is new.

The vineyard is an old one. Stephens's father settled on the place over thirty years ago. Some of the vines were planted in 1867, but most of the bearing Tokays were planted thirteen or fourteen years ago. Many have been grafted from the wine-grape stock. The vineyard has borne fairly well, and, until this year, Mr. Stephens has thought he was doing well enough in selling his grapes to Sacramento dealers for $50 a ton, on the vines. This year, owing to a method to which we shall refer later on, he made less than fifteen acres of Tokay and Cornichon grapes yield over $16,000, netting, above all expenses, $8343, or over $556 an acre. Shipments began August 15th, and ended October 26th. During this period there were shipped, to be sold east, 3046 double crates of 40 pounds each, or 121,680 pounds of grapes. The highest price Mr. Stephens received last year, when his vineyard was not systematically irrigated, was $4.05 for a double crate of Tokays. The banner sale this year was on November 6th, when Tokay double crates brought in New York $8.35. The lowest price he received was on October 17th, when a Tokay single crate sold for $1.70, or 8¢ cents a pound. His highest figure above noted, $8.35 a double crate, is about 20 cents a pound.

Now, as to reason for this remarkable increase in value of a crop. It is contained in one suggestive word—irrigation. There are low places in Mr. Stephens's vineyard where it was noticed that the vines bore more heavily and larger grapes than elsewhere. It was also noticed that, in very wet seasons, and when there were late rains, the table grape crop was more satisfactory. These facts determined Mr. Stephens to secure a water supply that he might irrigate his vines when he thought necessary. Neighbors laughed at him; but he persevered, sunk wells, put in pumps, and the result was, he grows grapes. He irrigates once during the dry season, early in June. Comparisons of Mr. Stephens's returns with those received by neighboring growers, shipping to the same firm, establish the fact that the difference lies in irrigation. The Bulletin, in its article, recognizes this truth very strongly. It says:

The irrigation was an object lesson in the results of irrigation on rich soil—soil that it had contended requires no irrigation, and with water, no benefit. All dourers on this subject should go and see the Stephens vineyard and hear the fortunate owner tell the good luck.

Again:

Improvements of various sorts are still being made in the irrigating plant. It has cost $10,000, and $10,000 a year for 99 years, reserving the American rights at the same figure. A dispatch from Washington announces that the Government has purchased a smokeless powder patent, which may be that of Ellsworth.

We are pleased and relieved to learn that our esteemed contemporary, the Heraid, does not, after all, intend to hold the Administration responsible for the bursting of the Conemaugh dam, but only the manufacturers who constructed the dam with criminal carelessness. We are not advised as to whether said manufacturers are all—or mostly—Republicans. Probably our contemporary is so informed, but even then, it seems to be going rather far to infer that Democratic manufacturers might not have been equally careless, under like circumstances.

Both parties have frequently experienced the pernicious effects of a barrel. There are, of course, certain legitimate features of a political campaign which cost money. There must be organization and a vigorous campaign. How to raise this money is the question. The levying of assessments upon candidates is not a good practice. It often reduces the question of candidacy too much to one of a very weak one.

"Well, do you intend to hand over that barrel?"

"No sir, I'll see you—" but he never finished the sentence, for the little horseman let out with his left, and took the big man square in the mouth. Blood flew in all directions, and the portly gentleman went down like a log, but before he reached the ground the little man got in several good blows, and he went to sleep in the most appropriate manner.

"The young woman, who was a sharpshooter, shot her escort, was, and she made down street as tight as she could run, letting out an Indian war-whoop at every jump. Finally, the portly gentleman picked himself up and walked off. He was covered with blood from head to foot and presented a most pitiable aspect. It is not known whether the master is dead or not, but the portly gentleman did not show up yesterday, and if a complaint has been sworn out it has not been served yet.

One time since your committee decided to depart from the questionable practice of assessing candidates, which practice is, in effect, a sale of nominations to cash bidders. They also decided to avoid soliciting

BERLIN, Nov.

THE SPEAKER.THE FIVE CANDIDATES FOR THE BIG PRIZE.

Characteristics of Reed of Maine, McKinley of Ohio, Cannon, Burrows and Henderson—Interesting Personal Mention of Each.

(Washington Dispatch.)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—The struggle of the aspirants for the Speakership has now fairly begun. The most prominent candidate in the present contest is Mr. Reed. He has been recognized for several years as the leader of the Republican majority in the House. He is almost Falstaffian in his proportions, with an enormous bald head surmounting his square shoulders.

Mr. Reed.

Mr. Reed is 50 years of age. He is a native of Maine, and a lawyer by profession. The representatives of the legal profession far outnumber all others in the House, and in the present contest each of the five candidates is a member of that calling. Mr. Reed served during a part of the late year as an assistant attorney-in-chief. He has represented the Portland district for 12 years. He is a brilliant debater, a hard student and a master of invective. He has risen to his present commanding position in the House by sheer force of ability. He occupies the same relative position there, so far as his talents go, that Mr. Ingalls in the Senate holds. Neither is popular, even with his own party, but both are respected for their brains and splendid fighting qualities. Moreover, Reed possesses a nimble wit and power of repartee that have made him greatly feared by his less clever opponents.

During the course of a debate several years ago with Col. Morrison of Illinois, the latter, with a great show of humility, closed his remarks with the declaration that he would rather be right than be President. The representative from Maine provoked a howl of laughter by immediately retorting that the gentleman from Illinois was bound to be either. The indisposition of the retort was the more keenly relished on account of Col. Morrison's Presidential aspirations, which were generally understood at the time.

tions Committee during the past few Congresses, and is quite as great a stickler for economy as Mr. Randall. He will go into the caucus with a fair following. He is a dangerous competitor for the place, as those who have opposed his candidacy will no doubt disapprove of the talents he brings. The relations between him and Mr. Reed are very cordial, and it is believed that the Maine statesman would prefer Mr. Cannon as his residuary legatee in the event that he himself fails to secure the prize.

Mr. Burrows.

Julius Caesar Burrows of Michigan is one of the most popular men in the House. He is 52 years old. He was a soldier in the late war and has had 10 years' service in the lower branch of Congress. He is built on the same moral and intellectual lines that Mr. Carlisle has. He has a judicial mind; he is popular with both his Republican and Democratic confreres. He would make an admirable speaker. He is not only an excellent orator, but he is fair to the last degree. He would make in this respect a fitting successor to Mr. Carlisle, whose just and impartial rulings have gained for him during his six years' occupancy of the chair the affection and esteem of his Republican opponents.

Mr. Henderson.

"Dave" Henderson of Iowa, as he is familiarly called, is given the last place on the list of candidates, because he is possibly credited with the least strength among the first triplet. His adherents say that this is a mistaken impression, and that Col. Henderson is quite as strong as any of the other gentlemen, with the exception of Mr. Reed. Col. Henderson is what men call a "good fellow." I mean by this that he possesses all the kindly and generous qualities which most men exhibit in their nature. He was born in Scotland, but is a true American in every fiber of his being. He is still on the literary side of 50, and can boast of as fine a soldier record as any of the 2,000,000 Northerners who shouldered their arms and went forth to the defense of the Union. He lost a leg in 1863, and was discharged from the army. He reentered the service, however, a year later as Colonel of the Forty-sixth Iowa Volunteers, and fought gallantly, crippled as he was, until the close of hostilities. His distinguishing characteristic like that of Mr. Burrows is his extreme fairness. Should he fail to secure the Speakership, he will no doubt be rewarded with an important chairmanship in keeping with his merits and honorable service in the House.

A Hard Nut to Crack.
(National City Record.)
There is more money in catching Chinese who try to steal across the line into the United States than in anything else known to business. It is estimated that every Chinaman will cost the Government $1000 before he finally eludes the officers and accomplishes his object. The Exclusion Act is construed so that when an offender is caught he can only be returned to the Mexican side of the line to try it again next day.

A VOICE FROM POST ST.
A Lady Relates two Astonishing Experiences.

To whom it may concern: I have tried almost every conceivable remedy for biliousness during the past five years as I am of a bilious temperament and suffer much from stomach and bowels. But nothing ever gave me the relief that I obtained from taking Joy's Vegetable Saraparilla. In fact, I think it's cure for those ailments. At the time I was ill I had a little girl living in my family whose neck was seriously affected by a large open sore and blood purifiers to no avail. I gave her some of my medicine (Joy's Vegetable Saraparilla) thinking it might benefit her and as it was perfectly vegetable, knew it could do her no harm. To my astonishment she began to improve, and within two weeks it was entirely healed and she is now as well as ever.

Vienna Buffet.

The caterer for the amusement of the public of Los Angeles must look to their laurels. Mr. Kerkow, the kindly landlord of the Vienna Buffet, has entered into strong competition with them, inasmuch as he has secured the services of the best support of our people, Señor Don Oro, the musical phenomenon, has been secured at a great expense, and he fully sustains his great reputation, and is well backed up by the great liaison and others.

Round-trip tickets from San Pedro to Catalina Island are only $2.25 for the winter season.

The regular meetings of the Boards of Police and Fire Commissioners will be held at the Mayor's office as usual today.

Mrs. Elizabeth Lowe Watson, the lecturer, will arrive here tomorrow from San Francisco, on a lecture tour in this country.

Bob Ingersoll writes to a gentleman in this city that he cannot visit California this season, notwithstanding the report that he is coming.

The Illinois Society will formally open its new hall on the corner of Sixth and Fort streets next Friday evening. An excellent programme has been arranged.

The subject of Maj. Hilton's Bible reading this afternoon and tomorrow afternoons will be on "Faith." The meeting on Thursday will commence at 3 o'clock instead of 2:30.

The improvements at the police station are making very rapid progress, and the new quarters will be ready for occupancy in a short time, when Los Angeles will have as good police accommodations as any city in the country.

Mary Walsh, the young woman who has been confined in the City Prison for several days past, was yesterday sentenced to 90 days' imprisonment for vagrancy, and was removed to the County Jail, where she will serve her sentence.

The following were the arrivals at the County Jail yesterday: Frank Yokel, dislocated shoulder; Soledad Ali Yow, and Ah Wow, petty larceny, city, and Mary Walsh, vagrancy, city. At 7 o'clock last evening there were 103 prisoners in the tanks.

Companies A, C and F, of the Seventh Regiment, N.G.C., have been invited by Company D of Pomona to give a sham battle at that city on Thursday Thanksgiving day, and have accepted the invitation. It will be a very enjoyable day for the boys and those who witness their drill.

Yesterday afternoon a telephone message was received at the police station to the effect that a man was raiding a room in a saloon on San Fernando street. The patrol wagon was sent out and returned with James Dorsey, who was locked up on a charge of disturbing the peace.

Mrs. Parkes, the insane woman yesterday committed to the asylum at Napa, left for the north in charge of Deputy Sheriff Wray. Mrs. Parkes' mania took a suicidal turn Monday night, and she attempted to hang herself in her cell, but was discovered by the other prisoners and cut down.

Marriage licenses were issued yesterday to the following persons: Lawrence M. Anderson, aged 25, and P. B. McNitt, aged 22, city; Fremont Foster, aged 25, and Addie Footer, aged 23; and C. T. Thursday, Thanksgiving day, the L.O.C.F. of this city will set apart for the planting of trees in their new cemetery on Stephenson avenue. The members will meet in Odd Fellows' Hall at 10 a.m., and headed by a band of music, will march to First-street bridge, when the cars will be taken. In the evening a social gathering will be had in their hall. Speaking, singing and lunch will be the order of the evening.

One of the horses attached to the carriage of H. Newmarch, crippled and fastened to a nail, crossing Spring street, almost opposite the courthouse, about 12:30 o'clock. In falling, the other horse was dragged down, and before the animals could get on their feet they were caught by bystanders. But for the prompt action of the driver and several men standing near by a serious accident would probably have occurred. One or two ladies of the family were the carriage, but they got out without injury.

George E. Johnson died yesterday morning at 7 o'clock of heart disease. A doctor was called in, and while performing for him he died. Mr. Johnson was the father-in-law of Mr. J. W. Spencer of Ventura. Mr. Spencer was at once telegraphed for and came here on the 4 o'clock train. Mr. Johnson was a capitalist, and came from Kansas, and has lived in this city about five years. On the 3d of January last, while Mr. Johnson and his wife were out riding the horse ran away and upset the carriage. Mrs. Johnson was badly injured and died on the 13th of the same month. Mr. Johnson has been afflicted with heart disease for some time.

STYLE AND COLORINGS IN CLOTHING.
The Advantage Experience Gives in the Selection of Goods for the Trade—Cotton vs. Wool—Department Exhibits.

PEOPLE'S STORE.
LOS ANGELES, Nov. 27, 1889.
Gentlemen of good taste always remark when looking through our clothing department that we have displayed the best possible taste as to style and colorings in the selection of goods. We have a large stock of the wares, by reason of the many years' service behind the dry goods counter, we are thereby able to sell the cotton from the wool, able to discern the good wearing from the shoddy, and use this experience to the benefit of our customers.

Therefore, no wonder that our clothing department enjoys the trade, has the custom and sales for us patrons each and every day. Nevertheless, in our restless way for mastery, we are not content with simply doing enough, but we aim to increase the field of our usefulness and add to our now high list of patrons many more at present unknown to us.

It is useless to tell you of values. Our values are always right. We buy at the fountain head, get prices far below the occasional straggler to the market, and in turn place before our patrons values astonishing to everyone.

We are free of charge, all goods purchased from us, and never allow a suit to leave our establishment unless it fits perfectly in every respect.
